- The HKCEC, located on the magnificent and renowned Victoria Harbour, is owned by the Hong Kong Trade Development Council (TDC) and the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Government. The TDC is entrusted by the Government to be responsible for the HKCEC's development, design and management. The TDC has contracted with HML for management and operation of the HKCEC. HML is a wholly-owned subsidiary of NWS Holdings Ltd (Hong Kong stock Code: 659).

- The cost of the HKCEC when it first opened in 1988 was approximately HK$2.5 billion (US$322 million), including two hotels, an office tower and a service apartment tower.
- The first expansion completed in 1997 cost HK$4.8 billion (US$620 million), including site reclamation which began in June 1994; and the second expansion completed in 2009 cost HK$1.4billion (US$180 million).

Building Features

- The HKCEC is adjacent and connected to the Convention Plaza which also includes the 857-room Renaissance Hong Kong Harbour View Hotel, the 549-room Grand Hyatt Hong Kong, a 39-storey office tower, a 580-unit 46-storey serviced apartment tower, shopping arcade and an underground car park.
- A unique feature of the HKCEC's first extension which opened in 1997 is the 40,000 sqm aluminum roof cladding, sculptured to portray an image of a seabird soaring into flight.
- With limited land supply, the second expansion was suspended above the harbour, using an unconventional top-down approach for construction which broke several records in Hong Kong's building history and won industry accolades.
- The architect on the Centre's initial structure and adjacent Convention Plaza was Ng Chun Man & Associates Architects & Engineers and the contractor was Hip Hing. The architect on the first extension which opened in 1997 was Wong & Ouyang (HK) Ltd in association with Skidmore, Owings & Merrill Inc. of Chicago.
